Welcome to ArchLink!

Greetings, alumni!

We strive to find as many ways possible for you to reconnect with old friends, classmates and faculty members and for you to update them on the exciting developments in your life since walking out through the Griffith Memorial Arch on graduation day!

The University of Findlay Alumni Association offers the following ways for alumni to connect through social media:

Findlay Oiler Alumni Connection is exclusively for UF alumni. The Web-based feature is available at www.findlay.edu, KEYWORD: Alumni. The Findlay Oiler Alumni Connection allows you to:

- get a free, permanent alumni email address
- search a comprehensive alumni directory
- share personal or professional news with photos and text
- include your résumé in your profile for others to view as well as search and view other users' résumés

Have you joined us on LinkedIn, the world's largest professional network on the Internet? LinkedIn connects professionals around the world, to help them become more productive and successful. Click here to get started.

Are you connected to The University of Findlay Alumni Association page on Facebook? If not, go to <http://www.facebook.com/UFAumni-Association> to join us today. Millions of people use Facebook to keep up with friends and upload photos, videos and links.

And last, but not least, update us if you've gotten a new job, recently married, welcomed a new little Oiler to your family or been recognized for an achievement. Click here to submit your news.

Our goal with each of these groups is to provide a venue for Oilers to network and get to know one another, and help our alumni stay connected to their alma mater. We look forward to connecting with you!

With Oiler Pride!

FINDLAY
THE UNIVERSITY OF FINDLAY

1. What's Happening on Campus?

John Taylor, vice president for accreditation relations for the Higher Learning Commission

The University hosted John Taylor, vice president for accreditation relations for the Higher Learning Commission and the UF staff liaison for accreditation review, on March 23 as the formal kick-off of the accreditation review process. Taylor's campus-wide address provided an overview of the assessment process, which will culminate with a review team visit to Findlay in spring 2014, followed by a continuing accreditation decision later that year. Preparations for the visit began in 2011, when more than 100 members of the campus community were invited to join committees organized around the five criteria of the accreditation review process. Feedback from alumni and community members will be sought, as well. Guided by an 18-member steering committee, the process will produce a document intended to meet the commission's requirements for continued accreditation and ensure a continuous quality assessment process.

The University of Findlay will host International Night from 6-9 p.m. Friday, April 20, in the Alumni Memorial Union. Ten countries will be represented. International students who attend UF will host booths with items from their home countries on display. Visitors will learn about traditional dress, crafts and other activities, and food samples from each country also will be available. At 6 p.m., students will demonstrate a variety of traditional and nontraditional dances, music, martial arts and other entertainment. A fashion show also will be included during the program. For more information, please contact the Office of International Admissions and Services at 419-434-4558.

As the end of the academic year quickly approaches, the University's musical groups are preparing end-of-semester concerts:

- Symphonic Band and Wind Ensemble will present "And They're Off ... Overtures – Classic and New" at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 22, at Findlay High School's Heminger Auditorium. Tickets are $5 for general admission and $3 for students and senior citizens; call the Box Office at 419-434-5335 or get tickets at the door, if available. For detail, click here.
- The University's orchestra will present a spring concert featuring the music of J.S. Bach, Mozart and Leonard Bernstein at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 15, in Winebrenner Theological Seminary. No tickets needed.
- The University Singers will present their annual Family Concert at 3 p.m. Saturday, April 21, in Winebrenner Theological Seminary. Admission is free, but tickets are required. Contact the Box Office at 419-434-5335 to reserve your tickets in advance.

The University of Findlay's commencement ceremonies are Saturday, May 5, in the Koehler Fitness and Recreation Complex. The graduate ceremony is at 9 a.m., and the undergraduate ceremony is at 2 p.m. No tickets are necessary. Commencement brunch is 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Alumni Memorial Union. (Call 419-434-4516 for reservations.) The bacalaureate service is at 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 4, in the College First Church of God sanctuary.

The English Equestrian Second Annual Musical Freestyle Show will be held Saturday, April 21, at the James L. Child Jr. Equestrian Complex from 1 - 4 p.m.

Senior dressage students will perform musical freestyles and a drill, Pas de Deux, and senior hunter/jumper students will perform musical hunt seat freestyles. Janet Harms is the head dressage instructor; Michelle Arnold is the senior hunter/jumper coordinator and Stella Prescott is the head hunter/jumper instructor. Refreshments will be provided by UF's Hospitality Management and Sport and Event Management Programs under the direction of John Wolper, Ph.D., chair of business administration programs. Please R.S.V.P. to Betsy Martindale, martindale@findlay.edu or 419-434-6256. Click here for more information.

Kassy Wene as she prepares to install foam insulation under the roof of a house.

Students and chaperones – 30 in total – from The University of Findlay recently returned from the Habitat for Humanity Collegiate Challenge Alternative Spring Break Trip in Mandeville, La., March 3-11, where they helped to build six homes in different phases of construction and even saw some alligators. Once the group arrived in Louisiana, they worked with the Habitat for Humanity St. Tammany West affiliate, which coordinated their work during the week. Building site tasks included raising trusses, insulating the houses with foam and house wrap, raising and securing walls, laying interior trim and more. UF alumna Jeanine Scheidler ('08) also traveled with the group as a chaperone after having participated in the alternative spring break trip twice while she was a student at Findlay. She said she wanted to give back to her campus community and serve with current students in a new capacity. To read the full story, click here.

The University of Findlay's Circle K Club members earned recognition, both as a group and individually, at the Circle K District Convention in Columbus in February. Findlay's Circle K group took home several awards: first place, Scrapbook Award; first place, Single Service Project Award; and third place, Kiwanis Sponsor Award. In addition, group members received individual recognition. Chris Conklin, sophomore pharmacy major, received a third-place award for Outstanding Club Vice President. Mariah Hohman, junior special education major, won second place for The Andrew Littlefield Outstanding Treasurer Award. Darryl Lai, an international student from Malaysia, received third place for The Jason Stewart Outstanding Member Award. To read the full story, click here.

Attending the Circle K District Convention in Columbus were Mariah Hohman, treasurer; Traci Hrenko, communication chair; Katie Schiavone, president; and Darryl Lai, K family chair, with Craig Wallace, Ohio Kiwanis governor-elect.

Paul Sears, Ph.D., dean of the College of Business, called the Dana program “a jewel in the crown” of the College of Business at a luncheon on March 21, which also featured Kevin Moyer ('80), who was a COB Visiting Executive for the day. Sears remarked that Moyer had played “a seminal role” in the creation of the Dana Chair Executive-in-Residence Program. The Dana Endowed Fund initiated the program and continues to provide funding for a distinguished member of the business community to serve as an adviser to selected students and as guest lecturer for the College of Business. The luncheon included current and past Dana chair executives-in-residence and Dana scholars from across the years. Sears had special praise for Edwin Heminger, the first Dana chair in 1995, who passed away Nov. 30, 2011.

Heminger was “honored for his pioneering work and contributions” to the Dana program. Sears noted that Heminger continued his involvement with the program and hosted a special reception for the Dana chairs and scholars each year. Heminger’s children, Karl, Kurt and Meg Heminger, were special guests at the luncheon in honor of their father.

Kurt, Meg and Karl Heminger were honored guests during at a recent luncheon in which Dr. Paul Sears, dean of the College of Business, paid tribute to their late father, Edwin Heminger, for his contributions to the Dana Chair Executive-in-Residence program.

4. Alumni Spotlight

Kevin P. Moyer ('80): Thinking Like a Leader

Kevin’s Moyer’s best advice to students during his day as the College of Business Visiting Executive on March 21, was, “Position yourself for success. Think like a leader from day one on the job.”

He encouraged students to understand the issues for their division, company and industry, volunteer for tough assignments, demonstrate problem-solving skills, figure out how to get things done and be accountable for the results. He advised them to network within their industry, gain additional degrees, training and certificates, and take advantage of opportunities to travel abroad. He also emphasized the value of teamwork and leadership skills in managing people.

Kevin Moyer ('80), president of Global Pathways LLC, served as a College of Business Visiting Executive March 21.

Moyer met with accounting students, faculty and alumni mentors at a breakfast and gave presentations for classes in accounting, economics, finance, and advertising and public relations before giving a public lecture at noon on “Leadership and Creating Green Communities: Job Creation and Economic Development Impact.”

Kevin Moyer greeted Sandra Miller, Sara Steinbrunner and Debra Ward at a breakfast for accounting students, faculty and alumni mentors.

Moyer’s formula for success was effective in his own career. A 1980 graduate of then-Findlay College, Moyer’s first job was with Diamond Savings & Loan in Findlay. Dana Corp. acquired Diamond, and Moyer began a more than 20-year career with the Fortune 500 company. He went on to earn an executive MBA from Bowling Green State University and then to rise through the ranks at Dana. He served as corporate vice president for the Dana e-Business and Global Information Technology Group as well as the president of several groups, including Dana Fluid Products Group, Dana Asia Pacific and Capital Market Group, Dana Commercial Credit.

After leaving Dana, Moyer formed his own company in 2008 as president and principal of Global Pathways LLC, a consulting firm that specializes in financing for alternative energy and energy-efficiency projects, opportunities in clean-technology and international markets and other executive management, business development, startup and advisory services. Moyer said that he has a real interest in economic development and helping create jobs, especially in northwest Ohio.

In his consulting role, he is serving as the executive director of energy efficiency and alternative energy for the Toledo-Lucas County Port Authority. One of his successful projects is BetterBuildings Northwest Ohio, a partner with the U.S. Department of Energy. This program has a current project pipeline of $30 million, with a goal of completing more than $100 million in new projects in the next several years resulting in $20 million in energy cost savings per year, creating 2,000 new jobs and significantly reducing greenhouse gas generation. Moyer also is involved in plans to reclaim brownfield sites for industrial development and alternative energy production.

Moyer, who grew up in Findlay, chose then-Findlay College largely because he received scholarships and grants, but also because “professors really seemed to take an interest in students,” he remarked.

He remembered business professors Ken Buchenroth, Kew Park, Shiv Gupta, Randy Van Dyne and George Barrett, who “all had an impact on me in some way.” He also learned to love history and world religion with Richard Kern. One of his most vibrant memories, Moyer recalled, was a trip with his Freshman Seminar class that took them to a coal-mining town in Pennsylvania, New York City (his first time there) and a religious commune in New York as an introduction to different cultures and socio-economic groups.

As a commuter student who was working his way through college and was employed full-time as a senior, Moyer said his campus involvement was limited to Marketing Club and Students in Free Enterprise. During his senior year, the SIFE team won the regional championship and traveled to Dallas, Texas, where they won the 1980 national championship. He remembered the experience of presenting and competing, as well as his first trip on an airplane.

Moyer acknowledged that these experiences and others helped lay the foundation for his business career. "Findlay taught me how to think critically, creatively, analytically," he said.

5. Oiler Sports

Men's Basketball

The Oilers men's basketball team reached the round of 32 during the 2012 NCAA Tournament as they defeated #11 Northern Kentucky by a score of 50-49 before falling 86-63 to #4 Bellarmine. Freshman forward Jake Heagen led the Oilers with 11 points and five rebounds in the win over Northern Kentucky, while senior guard Kyle Caiola scored a season-high 26 points in the loss to Bellarmine.

Caiola was named second team all-region by the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC) for his performance during the 2011-12 campaign. Caiola, who was named first team all-Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (GLIAC), averaged 15.1 points, 3.7 assists, 2.6 rebounds and 1.5 steals per game as a senior. The 2012 GLIAC Tournament MVP also shot 49.8 percent from the floor, 45 percent from behind the three-point line and 93.2 percent from the free-throw line. His free-throw percentage was the second highest mark in NCAA Division II basketball this year and is the best mark ever by an Oilers player in a season.

Kyle Caiola

Men's and Women's Indoor Track

The University of Findlay men's and women's track and field teams completed the NCAA Division II Indoor Championships on March 10, in Mankato, Minn. Shane Shockey earned All-American honors and won his first national championship in the pole vault with a mark of 17-00.75, while Raven Clay also took All-American honors as she broke her own school record in the 60-meter hurdles and was crowned national champion with a time of 8.18.

Learfield Sports Directors' Cup

The University of Findlay is currently ranked 13th nationally in the 2011-12 Learfield Sports Directors' Cup standings and is third in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (GLIAC). Grand Valley State University leads the rankings both in the GLIAC and nationally, with Ashland University second in the conference and third nationally. The Oilers have a total of 316.75 points, all achieved during the winter sports season. Their total for the winter sports season is also the third best among the 185 schools in the Learfield standings. The Learfield Sports Directors' Cup was developed as a joint effort between the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) and USA Today. Points are awarded based on each institution's finish in up to 14 sports – seven women's and seven men's.

Wrestling

The University of Findlay wrestling team, ranked 11th in the nation, finished third at the 2012 NCAA Division II National Championship. The Roughnecks scored 58 points during the tournament and had their highest placing in school history at the NCAA Division II level. For his efforts in guiding the Roughnecks to their best finish, head coach Shawn Nelson was tabbed as the NCAA Division II Coach of the Year. Junior Mason True and sophomore Adam Walters earned runner-up honors in their respective weight classes and joined sophomore Ben Sergent and senior Michael Lybarger in being named All-American.
