Dr. Smith was a professor of philosophy from 1979 until 2013, serving as director of the Philosophy Program for 33 years. In his classes he stressed the relevance of philosophy and the humanities for everyday life. He believed that the best college education involves an adequate grounding in the liberal arts. He considered it important for students to grapple with questions about ethics, the nature of reality and the meaning of life. A strong proponent of interdisciplinary studies, he challenged his students to approach problems with an open mind and to think critically and creatively. Mrs. Smith was a teacher in the Findlay City School system for over 20 years. With a master's degree in consumer and health sciences, she taught students practical skills and knowledge for job preparation, parenting, nutrition, hygiene and time management. Her father was also a teacher, and all her life she advocated the importance of a well-rounded education for young people as they transition into adulthood. Together Rich and Phyllis supported the University of Findlay financially and through regular attendance at various University functions, including sports events, musical and theatrical performances, and other campus activities. Phyllis participated in Senior Forum for many years and served for a time on the Senior Forum advisory committee.
